Loven Contracting partnered with Navajo Hopi Health Foundation to construct the new Sacred Peaks Health Center in Flagstaff, Arizona. This 24,000SF facility maximizes programming to feature a welcoming lobby area, patient check-in, primary care rooms for pediatric, family and geriatric services, a radiology department including bone scan and imaging suite equipment, optometry offices, physical therapy room, mental health offices, a full pharmacy, and associated administrative and workspaces, all within budget.

Each of these spaces incorporates cultural considerations with features and finishes that draw from tribal traditions and healing practices. The Sacred Peaks Health Center is the first entirely new building for the Foundation in Northern Arizona and represents a significant step in their ability to offer state-of-the-art healthcare services in a culturally sensitive setting.

Loven Contracting's preconstruction team worked with the NHHF to achieve both their aggressive programming and strict budgetary goals.

Loven Contracting staff is experienced at mitigating the effects of winter weather on-schedule and budget. The Sacred Peaks Health Center was completed on-schedule despite 42 days of inclement conditions.
